Description:

The Heliconia is one of the most extraordinary tropical plants and captivates with its distinctive flower structure. With the artificial Heliconia (FIRESILX), you can bring the fascinating beauty of this exotic plant into your interior design concept.

Its vibrant orange flowers grow upright among the large, rich green leaves, and their unique shape is reminiscent of the beaks of exotic parrots. This characteristic flower structure makes the plant, also known as the bird of paradise flower, one of the most striking representatives of tropical flora. It creates impressive color accents and gives any space a sophisticated yet distinctive atmosphere. Standing 190 cm tall, the Heliconia is an excellent choice for hotel rooms, exclusive suites, wellness areas, reception spaces, and stylish residential interiors. As a standalone feature, it immediately draws attention and creates an ambiance reminiscent of luxury resorts and tropical destinations.

The flame-retardant B1 version is particularly well suited for environments where decorative greenery must meet specific fire safety requirements. In hotels, public facilities, exhibition venues, trade show areas, and prestigious commercial spaces, this artificial plant enables impressive greenery concepts even where fire safety regulations must be observed. The result is an exceptional focal point that harmoniously combines exotic flair, sophisticated interior design, and outstanding design flexibility.

The plant is supplied with a basic nursery pot that provides stable support when placed inside a decorative planter.
